

Northern Pacific Railroad Transcontinental Minnesota to Pacific Ocean

Little Falls and Dakota Branch

The Northern Pacific Railway connects Minnesota and Lake Superior to Washington and the Pacific Ocean.

There are numerous branches along the way including the Little Falls and Dakota Branch in central Minnesota.

The branch begins in Little Falls and spans 80 miles to Morris.

The train depot in Starbuck, MN was an essential part of the town's commerce and life and is listed on the National Historic Register.
